EX-BOXER GETS LIFE FOR KILLING BROTHER

Member of Prominent Georgia Family Convicted of Murder.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Nov. 28 .-Preston Saylor, member of a prominent Georgia family who once boxed professionally under the name of K. O. Duggan, was convicted last night of killing ,his brother, Harry Saylor, and sentenced to life imprisonment. The jury returned its verdict of guilty of murder with a recomm dation for mercy a little more than an hour after it received the case. Judge Claude C. Fittman at once pronounced sentence.

Harry Saylor was shot at the family home several weeks ago. Preston Saylor, who escaped from the State hospital for the insane at Milledgeville, made an unsworn statement to the jury that he and his brother were scuffling at the time of the shooting.

"I don't know who pulled the trigger," he said. Harry did and maybe get off light, I don't say for I don't know. He said his brother had threatened him on several occasions. Two physicians testified that, under stress, Preston Saylor would not know right from wrong.

MAN IN HOSPITAL SHOT, KILLED BY ANGRY HUSBAND

He 'Broke Up My Home,' Says Louis Sapp When He Surrenders and Gives Up Pistol in New Orleans

'GLAD I DID IT,' HE TELLS OFFICIAL

Letters Disclose Woman's Plan to Get Divorce Then Her Reconciliation With Mate.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28.-Harold Bourg, 39-year-old electrician, married, and the father of two daughters, was shot to death in his bed in Illinois Central Hospital here By the Associated Press yesterday by Louis Sapp, 42, mar-

District Attorney Charles A. Byrne ordered Sapp held on a charge of murder.

"He went to my home and was with my wife and child while I was out looking for work," Byrne quoted Sapp as saying. "I am the man who did the shooting and I'm glad I did it.

When I walked into the room where he (Bourg) was I didn't say a word," Sapp related. "He was the first to speak, saying 'Hello, Louis.' That galled me and I be-gan firing before I knew it." Mrs. Bourg Heard Shots.

Mrs. Bourg, waiting in an ante-room, heard the shots that killed her husband. Two other patients were in the room at the time. Four hots were fired in rapid succes-ion. Bourg rolled from his cot, lead. Sapp calmly put aside his revolver and gave himself up to W. W. Leake, hospital superin endent. A special officer took him custody and turned him over to

"About four hours before the shooting I bought a gun in a Canal street store," the prisoner said. "I had a few drinks and then ate a steak. Then I went up to the hos-pital. I went to Bourg's room and shot him. That's what I went there for—to kill him."

Sapp said he met Bourg in 1931 while he was working on the new Statehouse at Baton Rouge. Letters Produced by Sapp.

Letters produced by Sapp supported his story in part. One, dated Nov. 23, began, "Dear Harold," and expressed regret that the writer could not see him. She had "some very good news that you would have been glad to hear." The letter went on: "Louis has agreed to give me a divorce so we can be married, for he has been convinced that I no longer love him, but love you . . . I am sure he means what he says and bears no grudge against you. It will be all right for you to come, as I can assure you that you are in no dan-ger of bodily harm from him." Merceina Weiss, Forest Park player and recent graduate of the University of Wisconsin, heads the 1935 women's singles ranking of the Missouri Valley Tennis Association, according to the official findings of the Ranking Committee, of which Karl Hodge of St. Louis is chairman. With Betty Butler of Des Moines, Miss Weiss also gained the No. 1 position in the Valley women's doubles ranking.

Miss Weiss was ranked No. 1 this year as the result of her showing in the Missouri Valley and St. Louis district events. She reached the final of the Valley championship at Des Moines last July, losing to Dr. Esther Bartosh of Los Angeles in a three-set battle. Dr. Bartosh was No. 6 in the Southern California ranking for 1934. Later Miss Weiss captured the St. Louis district women's singles title.

The St. Louis player began her tournament career in 1929 when, at the age of 13 years, she won the first annual St. Louis district girls' singles title. Following that tory. Miss Weiss reached the final of the municipal girls' event, losing to Adele Shine, Sublette player om she had defeated in the dis trict final.

Decay of the Field Goal.

GOALS from the field have in the offense of college football elevens this year. Illinois, lacking a powerful attack, put over a couple in recent games. But for the most part football elevens have disdained scoring by the three-point method, preferring to ov rushing or passing. In the Missouri Valley Conference, not one field goal was kicked by any eleven in a conference game, except to count point after touchdown. The decay of the field goal is lamentable because it sometimes serves its purpose as well as a touchdown.

With a six-point advantage, an attacking team, halted for three downs near an opponent's goal, can make itself practically invincible by booting a field goal. The enemy then must score TWO touchdowns to take the lead. Still, most of the attackers take a desperate fourth-down attempt at a pass, rather than play safe with a goal from the field. In this respect the lack of a good drop-kicker probably plays a large part, since with a triplethreat man back, the enemy could not guess what the play would be. Placement kickers, on the other hand, necessarily tip off the

That Twelve-Man Team.

N OW we hear advocated the "twelve-man football team," a brainstorm by a North Dakota coach. He wants another man on the field-a trained signal caller whose superior judgment would free an eleven from the mis-chances of weak quarterbacking. The twelfth man would have no part in the play but would merely direct the team's attack. When the enemy had the ball, he would quit the field. Just what would happen to him while a play is in progress is not mentioned. The twelfth man would be an amateur, working under the same eligibility conditions as the players, but whose light weight or other handicap would prevent him from figuring in the lineup.

Sounds silly. What do they want with an "amateur" field general, when they already have a professional one—the coach? One way or another, the coach does most of the directing of his team's attack, even to the extent (in some cases) of having press-box observers with coaching-bench phone connections, we are told.

A lot of wig-wagging can be done with a pair of white gloves on the coach's hands, or by waving a program. Quarterbacks are far from being on their own, at all times, after the whistle

TOM SCOTT AT FULLBACK FOR SPARTA ELEVEN IN GAME HERE

TOTAL

By Dent McSkimming

Although there is a dash of Scotch in the mixture, the Sparta the Shamrocks at Sportsman's Park. Sunday afternoon is very strongly Czecho-Slovak. Like most professional soccer teams in this country, the eleven is something of mixture of nationalities, including Scotch, Czechs, Yugoslavs and Italian.

For many seasons past, Sparta has been the most serious rival of the Bricklayers and Wieboldts for soccer supremacy in the Chicago district and this campaign the Czech organization has scored a real tactical victory in signing four of the players who starred last season for the Wieboldts. The addition of Tom Scott at right fullback; John Tomich at center halfback; Jimmy Lillie at outside right and Jimmy Munro at inside right 'apparently has provided the power that raises Sparta to the level of real championship class. In the past the team played smooth combination football but failed in finishing off its nice midfield maneuvers with good and persistent shoot-

Vlcek at Center Forward.

"Baba" Vlcek, heretofore the egular inside left forward, has been shifted to center and Dick Vidown to the reserves as Archie Robb takes over the wing position, Julius Hjulian has been replaced in goal by the younger William Tresnak; Laddy Mrnka pairs off with Scott at fullback, and Sterba back positions.

Pearson, despite a handicap in lack of height, is regarded as the finest wing halfback in Chicago. His game against the Scottish League all-stars last summer was ensational.

Those who witnessed the western cup final matches here last spring between the Centrals and Wieboldts will note that Sunday's game revives some of the personal rivalries of those furiously contested games. Tom Scott hooks up with his old chum Willie McLean; the huge Tomich clashes with Patenaude and Gonsalves; Lillie and Munro have Eddie Kane and Bill Lehman to beat. On the other hand, two of the most useful of the Wieboldt players in that red hot series, Bill Watson and Scotty Nilsen, are now in the St. Louis team, playing against old team-

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Bank clearings continue to score heavy gains, according to the report of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., issued today.

The total for the 22 leading cities in the United States for the week ended Wednesday, Nov. 27. was $5,472,471,000 compared with $4,174,354,000 a year ago, an upturn of 31 per cent. For the preceding week the gain was 21.7 per cent.

At New York City, clearings were $3,-521,727,000, an increase of 34.4 per cent over the total reported a year ago. The aggregate for centers outside New York was $1,950,744,000, or 25.7 per cent ahead of the 1934 total.

The amounts this week were particularly large at nearly all Eastern and Western points, the report said. Clearings continue ahead of a year ago at every city reporting.

The increase at New York City was greater than shown for a number of weeks and to ome extent reflected the heavier dealings in securities.

Continued large gains at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Detroit, reflect conditions in important industries centering at other cities, the survey stated.

Clearings were also much higher this week at Boston, Baltimore, Buffalo, Cincinnati, St. Louis ville, Minneapolls, Omaha, Kansas City, Dallas, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle. Buenos Aires was up 1½ cents.

Argentina's wheat exports this Atlantic issues and industrials firm were forecast at 1,028,000 er, and oil shares easier. The man bushels, which compared with last ket closed irregular. week's clearances of 1,218,000 bushels. Black Sea ports cleared 1,192,-000 bushels, against 1,760,000 last week. About 20 lake vessels were reported as taking on grain at the head of the lakes for shipment down the lakes. It was believed half of this grain was being taken East for winter storage.

Spreads held about unchanged in the cash grains section. Coarse grains trading was listless. Prices held at levels not far from their previous close.

Ministers Demand Still Larger Budget Appropriations. TOKIO, Nov. 28. - The Rengo (Japanese) News Agency reports that Japanese-American relations were cited at a stormy cabinet session yesterday in support of demands for increased appropriations for the army and navy in the new budget. The Cabinet was assembled to consider the budget for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1936.

The Minister of the Navy, Admiral Mineo Osumi, Rengo reports, declared: "Among the reasons for perfecting the Empire's naval defenses is America's policy in the Pacific Ocean and America's naval expansion; and the situation sure to arise if the impending London naval conference produces no new limitation agreement. The Minister of War, Gen. Yoshiyuki Kawashima, spreading maps, was quoted as saying: "In view of delicate relations of Japan and Manchoukuo with Soviet Russia the turbulent situation in China and our relations with America the Empire must strengthen its national defense." The statements were reported made in the course of replies to previous arguments by Viscount Korekiyo Takahashi, Minister of Finance, that the army and navy should abate their demands, cause, he asserted: "There is no danger that either America or Ruswill start a war against Japan. Both have wide territories and resources and neither would deliberately start a conflict, and therefore Japan should avoid anything to irritate them." The Finance Minister cited Italy's olation by sanctions by more than 50 nations aroused by the invasion of Ethiopia, and implied there was a danger of Japan's facing a similar situation. De Tocqueville, first, who looked upon us in our rough infancy when Andrew Jackson was in the White House and democracy was lisping its numbers with a sort of incorrigible assurance. # Behind the Tariff Treaty Scenes

Many political headaches have followed signing of commercial pact with Canada, for both the Farleys and the Fletchers are badly baffled as to its probable results, writer says; essentially, it is a triumph for the theories of Secretary Hull; the President now backs him, but the Brain Trusters are said to be bitterly critical.

Edson Blair in Barron's Financial Weekly.

No such juicy morsel for political and economic speculation has emerged from the Big Tent in months as Cordell Hull's reciprocal-trade treaty with Canada. If. your head's in a whirl trying to figure its net effect, be not dismayed, fellow citizen. You're not alone. Nearly everyone in the national capital is in precisely the Politicians, in particular, are acquiring as neat a set of headaches as you'll find in any champagne party the morning after the night before. Questions-vital ones, too -are popping up all over the landscape like dandelions after a rain. Answer half of them, and be sure you're right, and there's a soft job waiting in either political camp at a handsome stipend. For F. D. R.'s decision to follow the life dream of his gray and quiet Secretary of State has both the Fletchers and the Farleys badly baffled. What's more, it was a belt across the bean for most of the Brain

The Farleys, of course, can do nothing publicly except hail the pact as the "first step toward return of world trade." Privately, they are worried. They recall what the Taft-Laurier treaty under superficialsimilar circumstances did to President Taft, and wonder whether Roosevelt has pulled a prize bloomer.

The Fletchers could denounce it, but you may have noticed that most of them have not. At least, not yet. It is too sweeping and complicated. It may be a beauty or a boomerang. And, too, sharp criticism uttered too quickly might also prove a boomerang. ....

Story behind this story is one of the most interesting of the tragi-comic drama known as the New Deal. It started years ago, when Secretary Hull first entered the House of Representatives. It will end when his golden dream of a world made peaceful because the commercial causes of war have been removed, made prosperous by free movement of goods, is proved fact or

Hull's pet theory is that a creditor nation MUST trade with the world if it is not constantly to build up economic balloons such as burst in 1929

High tariff walls, to Hull, mean merely high walls to be erected, in turn, abroad against American goods. They mean more than mere protection of American labor against coolie-wage standards. They mean ommitment to an economic nationalism that can have no other expression than in such regimentation as has been typical of the New Deal under NRA and AAA.

Hull started battling tariffs, strangely enough, when the Payne-Aldrich bill was before Congress in 1910. It was to offset unpopularity of that very act that led Taft into his fatal deal with the Canadian Pre

For years, in both House and Senate, Hull clung to his fundamental idea. When Roose velt became President, victory seemed near. He became Secretary of State. An economic conference was called in London. Hull was in his element. F. D. R. was behind him. Suddenly Roosevelt shifted. He sent Prof.

Moley to London, and Moley upset Hull's ference. Hull took a boat back toward Before he got home, Moley went out the Roosevelt seemed about back door. swing back toward Hull's economics. But he didn't. Moley was gone (officially), but the Brain Trust was in the ascendancy. Hull's program of free trade, governmental economy and currency stabilization ran smack into revaluation the attempt spend the nation out of the depression, and artificial price-boosting under NRA and AAA. Economic nationalism ran riot.

Hull plodded ahead. He got through Congress a bill giving the President the right virtually to revise the entire tariff structure. A few little negotiations with Cuba and South America were started. "Poor old Cordell," chuckled the Brain Trusters.

He might have resigned even then, if it had not been for George Peek. Peek, long a professional pro-farmer, held that if Uncle Sam was going to let, say, French wines into this country in return for a reduction of automobile tariffs in France, it was silly to give all other countries the same tariff cuts under Hull's "most-favored-nation" principle. A Yankee trade, to Peek, was a Yankee trade.

Hull's view was broader and more ambitious. The only way to break down world trade barriers, he told F. D. R., was to break them down. It's too long a job to do it one country at a time. If the United States set the pace, Hull hoped, other countries would catch the idea and follow. And that in a world seething with suspicion and selfishness—Hitlers and Mussolinis.

Peek's idea of dumping specific surpluses n specific countries aroused Hull's ire and kept him on the job. All his life he had opposed dumping as a major trade evil. Even more, he opposed the policy of the Coolidge-Hoover era - lending American money abroad to "pay for our own goods."

Undercover cudgeling at the White House between the Peek-Brain Trust crowd and Hull was close and bitter for months. F. D. R. swung to Hull some time ago, but many believed he would not dare go so far as he did in the Canadian pact.

If you feel in an argumentative mood, try this one on your friends: In the present situation, lower tariffs are "conservative" and high tariffs "radical." Sounds a bit silly, but it's worth thinking over. It's the regimenters, the Brain Trust boys, who want to work out a national plan and tell you and me what to do, that most bitterly assail Hull. Their policy, fundamenis to jack up prices through some such device as NRA and AAA, dump surpluses where we can and let the rest of it go hang. Free-traders, like Hull, are urging Roosevelt to get out of all this shot-inthe-arm stuff, cut expenses, balance the budget, open world markets and let business rebound by itself.

Which sounds the more "conservative" to you? No attempt at definition, we assure you. Merely an interesting (we hope) interrogation,

Back to Private Business

From the New York World-Telegram.

O N every hand is evidence that the Roosevelt administration is passing the nation's economic responsibilities back to private business. And fortunately, there are some indications that private business is preparing to reassume these responsibilities.

Orders to tighten their belts have gone out from the White House to the various Government agencies, as the administration prepares a budget narrowing the gap beween revenue and expenses in the next fiscal year-with intent to close that gap

Secretary Roper, reinterpreting the President's recent promise of a "breathing spell." says that practically all of the administration's reform program is now on the statute books and that steady green signals on a clear right of way stretch ahead of business.

Outbidding the bankers, who in convention petition the Government to retire from empetition in lending, New Deal spokesmen at New Orleans invite them to take off the Government's hands such assets as RFC and PWA bonds and HOLC mortgages, representing transactions that contributed much to the Government's great bookkeeping deficit, and to repurchase from the RFC the banks' own preferred stock and notes.

The bankers on the other hand admit. through their Resolutions Committee, that Government deficits of the last six years "in part have been justified by efforts to relieve human suffering," but say conditions which necessitated heavy Government outlays have passed to a large extent, and that the obligation now rests upon private banking institutions to demonstrate that they are able to meet demands for business credit.

The key to providing jobs for the 20 per cent of American workers still idle, says he bankers' Policy Committee, is in floating long-term loans for manufacturing and utility industries, thereby stimulating heavy industries where unemployment has remained most acute.

The bankers have completed their diagnosis. The Roosevelt administration seems more than eager to withdraw and let private enterprise fill the prescription. the convalescing patient cannot attain recovery on promises alone.

STREAMLINED TURKEYS. the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger.

S OMETHING must have happened to American appetites, as well as to American cook stoves and roasting pans. Otherwise the Department of Agriculture would not be encouraging the breeding of a smaller turkey, a streamlined turkey, a turkey which may look like a duck, though it may still taste like a turkey. The experiments recently begun at Beltsville, Md., are being conducted, it is said, n response to public demand. The modern housewife wants a turkey weighing about 12 to 15 pounds when dressed, and full grown and mature in flavor. The Department of Agriculture will breed such & turkey, if the thing can be done. Yet there was a time, not so very long ago, when the size of the turkey was symbolic of the success of the Thanksgiving dinner. It was a matter for pride and boasting that the family turkey weighed pounds on the hoof and would hardly fit in the family oven. But ovens are smaller, appetites are smaller, turkeys must be smaller. Though if they are much smaller, there may be little point left in eating turkey on days of festival. If a turkey is to look like a duck and be no bigger than a duck, it may be simpler for the American family at Thanksgiving or Christmas to eat a duck, or two ducks, and be done with it.

The party Louis Country Club by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Wade Childress of Clayton road, and their sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Turner Childress, and Mr. and Mrs. Fielding T. Childress.

Arriving close to midnight from dinners and cocktail parties, the more than 500 guests entered a gala scene which derived its color from the brilliant gowns of feminine guests and from countless fall flow ers, casually arranged through the lounges. Ceilings and walls of the main dining room, where the orchestra sat, and of the enclosed terrace, were hung with autumn foliage and softly lighted by translucent fluted columns.

Refreshments were served at bar under the marquee, where the long buffet, from which supper was served after midnight, also stood. During supper and for breakfast about 5 o'clock in the morning smaller tables were set up in the east and middle lounges.

Many of the debutantes are entertaining out-of-town visitors who were guests at the party. Miss Childress' guests, Miss Elizabeth Windell and Miss Sue Todd Rov. both of Louisville, came to St. Louis especially for the event, and were the center of gay groups between dances. Miss Emily French arrived from her home in New York yesterday afternoon to visit Miss Katherine Burg, and was promptly started on a round of festivities to usher in Thanksgiving, ending with last night's party. Miss Lydia Ann Alguest, Miss Mary Katherine Mitchell of Memphis was there as were Miss Marie Taylor Spink's visqueen of Omaha's Aksarben ball, and Miss Betty Patterson of Wilmington, Del., who is visiting Miss Kathleen Wallace. Try to Be Thankful. Two Happy Shoats. Who Killed Lij Yasu? An Eye That Travels Far.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(Copyright, 1935.) COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 28. NE more Thanksgiving. The tall policeman with a big "automatic" at the Miami

railroad station, who ought to be a "G-Man" in Hollywood, says "it won't be much of a Thanksgiving for the little man who had spent his life paying for a house and just with blow down." wall Street writers say it won't be much of a Thanksgiving for gentlemen down there who have spent their lives building up fortunes of a million or fifty million, saw those structures blow over in the "big wind" of 1929, went back "into the market" too soon and haven't the courage to go back

But between those extremes there is much cause for thankfulness. We are all alive, therefore anything is possible. We have seen the worst times, an assortment of foolishness that can hardly be ex-

Thankfulness inspires courage, adds strength to determination and it is a blessing in itself.

So let us be thankful, if possible.

Sunshine, beautiful solitude along the track from Southern Florida. Not a house, or cultivated field in sight. Two half-grown pigs, sight. Two haif-grown roam "shoats," farmers call them, roam harmonicusly with a great stretch of wood to themselves, no fence along the track, no protection against locomotives for the pigs except common sense. They have plenty of that. One pig is all black, the other part white, part black. Side by side, they forage, acorns plentiful, here and there patches of green grass.

They absorb protein, starch, plenty of vitamins. Their life is friendly. If one gets more acorns than the other, the other says to himself "What a smart pig," and does not bite him. There is no "Duroc," or "Jersey Red" pig, telling them to "rise and throw off their chains," and no new deal telling them to spit out every Soon, with Christmas and cooler weather, they will be slaughtered, changed to head-cheese, bacon, pork chops, pigs' feet, hams. They do not know it, never heard of death and it will not hurt much they hardly feel the cut of the knife, as they struggle against their noble brother man, seizing them by their hind legs. "Life, death and the vast eternity" predestination, free will, the problem of immortality or no immortality for pigs has never worried them. Happy pigs!

It is for us to wonder about the deeds of the living.

Lij Yasu is dead, suddenly, chained in death as in life to a coptic priest, made responsible for coptic priest, made responsible for his safe-keeping. Lij Yasu, Emperor of Ethiopia until Haile Selassie kicked him out, made doubtful the rights of Haile, whose "glorious civilization" some Washington dodos would protect. Yasu's death gives Haile undisputed control. You wonder who killed poor Lij Yasu, who ordered it

Lij Yasu, who ordered it.

Mussolini will not keep Haile Selassie chained to a priest. Rather, he will give him a pension, tell him to go and dance around in Paris.

Ten thousand Japanese troops marched through the great wall into Northern China, feeling it their duty to protect 95,000,000 Chinese who want to be independent of old China and, incidentally, become Japanese subjects. You wonder how soon Japan will absorb all of China's 400,000,000 and, then, how long it will be before the 400,-000,000 absorb Japan.

The news that will be remembered 10,000 years hence, announces completion, at the Corning Glass Works, of the 200-inch "eye" of what will be the world's greatest

What will that cosmic eye tell man about the universe in which our solar system, its sun and planets are one atom?

The great telescope will take the sight and mind of man into space a distance of 1,200,000,000 light

To know how many miles that is, multiply 1,200,000,000 by six trillion. A light year is six trillion miles (6,000,000,000,000). Think about that, and you will think of something worth while.

President Masaryk of Czecho-Slo vakia thinks he will retire "soon." He is 85 years old, and a little apologetic about giving up work. Euro-peans last longer and are abler in old age than Americans. Why? Do we work harder, perhaps, while we are younger? Is it that some of us specialize in ice water and soggy

A Favorite of Quiltmakers

WASHINGTON PAVEMENT

ASHINGTON PAVEMENT is one of the quiltmaker's favorites. It is easy to cut—the patches are all of the same width, permitting the material to be cut into strips. And then you just start from the center and sew the patches round and round-so what could be easier? But aside from these short cuts, the finished quilt is as handsome as any quiltmaker could care to own.

Pattern 457 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and love. In the cast also are Robert a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Style Trends Reversed With Back Fulness

Newest Modes for Winter Take Interest Away From Front.

By Sylvia Stiles

E might have guessed that the designers wouldn't toy long with front fullness but would soon be thinking up some reversed ideas to make our new vinter clothes look outmoded.

The time has come when backs are replacing fronts in the graces of Dame Fashion. All of the full-ness that was bunched on chests and stomachs now is being pushed around to shoulder blades and hips and every effort made to see that a costume is much more interesting when a woman's back is turned.

This trend is more apparent in evening fashions than it is in the clothes for daytime, but sufficient proofs of the reversal of interest can be found to make the situation alarming. Perhaps a clever seam stress can come to the rescue of those with Grecian frocks and turn them to up-to-dateness-or far-see ing ones will prefer to wear them for a few months, knowing that the concentration of fullness at any point, whether front or back, merely is preparatory for the return of the true pencil silhouette. Bustles, floating panels, panniers, pleated sections and shirred godets are among the methods of introduc ing fullness at the back of evening frocks. The bustle theme often is presented of a stiff fabric such as old-fashioned gros de Londres, but designers are not hesitant about using the more supple fabric, too. One white crepe frock, for example, that a St. Louis shop displays has wide shirred panels to form the back of the bodice. These come together in V formation at the waistline, then loop over to form a bustle and extend to provide a train considerably longer than the hem of the skirt. An emerald green taffeta frock which has the skirt fullness massed at the back emphasizes this by means of a bustle attached to a very short yoke.

The floating back panel is a pop-ular method of featuring the back fullness, since it is in accord with the "goddess" mood in evening attire. A striking version of this idea is a chiffon frock that appears in a fuchsia tone and has a pleated panel of a lighter tone suspended from a halter neckline. The pleats are held very closely together at the top, but are released to form a fan-shaped overdrape at the back of the skirt. A different version employs velvet and metallic fabric in shades of wine red. The panel is in reality a very long scarf which is attached like a bertha across the front of the bodice and then per-mitted to hang free from the top of the shoulders to the floor. Other scarfs that are draped over one shoulder follow the trend of back Fringe is another means of supplying decoration at the back of evenings frocks. Very long fringe is used to cover the back of one fringe placed below one another form a pannier that is unusual in the trimming of another black frock. The latter is a "bar" type, means that although it is quite dressy it has the skirt of day-time length.

Noted among the illustrations of the new silhouette in daytime dresses is a dark green matelasse crepe which has a yoke at the back of the skirt, to which a very full panel has been shirred. The front of the skirt is straight of line. The blouse has a high neckline, relieved of plainness at the front by means of a gold medallion and buttoning at the center back. Another interesting model has gored tiers in a panel at the back. The material is a dull finished crepe and the shade is cinnamon brown.

Belts that fasten with the buckle at the back, sashes which have back bows, elaborate buttons ex-tending from neckline to hem, and tricky little lacings are other crushed pineapple, one-fourth cup means of calling attention to the fact that a frock may be more interesting when the wearer is going rather than coming.

She stood in the center of the room, looking around, feeling as if she were in a strange place even though she could hardly remember having lived anywhere but right here.

She opened her mother's top draw-er, remembering how as a small girl she had tipped up on her toes, fascinated by the serene and orderconditon of mother's possessions. At first she didn't see the long white envelope addressed to her. The tears in her eves were misting her vision. But suddenly the bold black letters of a return address of a publishing house and the neat typing of her own name on the face of the envelope sprang into her consciousness. Wonderingly, she picked up the letter. It had been pened. For the first time in he life her mother had opened her mail. She wondered why. She slipped the letter out of the envelope and began to read, her expression changing slowly. Her novel vas very good, the typing said. EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE WHITE KING OF THE ZULUS—John Dunn, born in 1839, white chief of Zululand, is to be numbered among the most picturesque adventurers of Africa. He was a cattle driver at the age of 14. Before he came of age, he was elected one of the chieftains of Zululand. At the outbreak of the Zulu War, Dunn was the ruler of a large territory and the head of a considerable family. He acquired 40 wives, buying them oa the cattle exchange plan. These wives bore him a total of 120 children of whom 79 are living today. During the Zulu War (1879) Dunn, at the head of 2000 warriors, joined the British against the Zulus. Out of gratitude, the British Government assigned a large territory to Dunn. Out of this territory every descendant of Dunn is entitled to 100 acres today. The Natal Government has recently confirmed this grant.

money, and wouldn't Bess be surprised and pleased when she learned of his acumen?

He straightened up suddenly as said that, knowing you would probote one of her sentences bore in upon his consciousness. "What did you his acumen?

Herbert subsided and ran a being no good." She looked confinger around his confining collar the bank this morning and paid off tritlely at him. "Tm sorry, Herbert, relievedly. "It's no matter, dearest," All morning Herbert played with the idea, becoming more and more "Please, Herbert, don't get so somebody called. Ted called here the mortgage. And that reminds me, somebody called. Ted called here has embarrassed you if you made realize mistakes will happen!
